

REV. J. P. O'MAHONEY
HIGHLY HONORED AT
HIS SILVER JUBILEE

Large Crowd Attends Celebration

The Rev. John P. O'Mahoney, c. s. v., former president of St. Viator's College and now director of the work of the St. Viator Extension Club, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to the Holy Priesthood Wednesday, April 24, at St. Viator College. There were two principal functions of the day: the Solemn High Jubilee Mass and the Jubilee Banquet. At 10:45 A. M. the procession began to move from Marsile Hall to the church of the Maternity. The procession was brilliant: there were the students in their Sunday night best, the Seniors in their dignified regalia, surpliced acolytes, the brothers and priests, the monsignors arrayed in all their entitled purple, the officers of the Mass in shimmering vestments of old gold and white, and a bishop, the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Shiel, D. D., Auxiliary to His Eminence of Chicago. The "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus" broke forth from the St. Philip Neri boys choir when the procession entered the church. This choir, under the direction of Miss Mary Anderson, and Mr. Horace Anderson, also sang the mass. The Reverend Jubilarian was of course celebrant of the Mass, the Very Rev. W. J. Surprenant, c. s. v., was Archbishop, the Rev. John A. McCarthy, P. R., Deacon, and the Rev. John Armstrong, sub-deacon. The master of Ceremonies was Rev. Bro. Wm. Cracknell, c. s. v., assisted by the Rev. John L. McMullen. Acolytes were the Rev. F. E. Munsch, c. s. v., and the Rev. Leo McDonald. Thurfers were the Rev. T. C. Harrison and

Office Management
Class Visits Plant

The members of the Office Management class made an inspection trip through the entire Bradley Manufacturing plant last week. The tour of the plant was conducted by Mr. Wheeler.

Their guide led the group of students through the planing mill, forge shop, machine shop, foundries, paint shop, assembly department and the warehouse. At every point of interest in the plant Mr. Wheeler stopped the group and explained the principle and operation of the particular machine to the students.

Probably the most interesting sight in the shops was the pouring of the molten iron in the foundry. This operation was carried out by hand, and from all parts of the shop men were to be seen running to and from the long stream of white hot iron, with their ladles.

After a trip through the shops the group returned to the office. Mr. Larson, the office manager then explained the Cost Accounting System to the students. He contended that Cost Accounting was very difficult and detailed work and that its first and most essential law was accuracy.

The students and faculty of St. Viator College sincerely thank Mr. Larson and Mr. Wheeler for the kind and courteous manner in which they explained everything to their student visitors.

the Rev. J. M. Fitzgerald. The deacons of honor to His Lordship Bishop Shiel were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. A. J. Burns and the Rev. D. A. Feeley. Occupying places in the Sanctuary were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. G. M. Legris, the Very Rev. Horsbaugh and the Very Rev. Msgr. William Griffin. The sermon was preached by Bishop Shiel. His Lordship told briefly of the dignity of that Holy Priesthood to which Fr. O'Mahoney was raised twenty-five years ago and lauded his work in the field of Catholic Education. The bishop closed with the expression of his personal felicitations to the Jubilarian, coupled with the most earnest greetings from His Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of Chicago.

The banquet at 1:45 P. M. was served in the gymnasium to about five hundred guests; about a fourth of these were priests, many of whom had not been to the College in years. The banquet was prepared under the direction of Father O'Connor and was served by the Catholic Daughters of America. Occupying the center of the head table was a large cake with twenty-five candles. Before dinner was over the Master of Ceremonies, the Rev. J. V. Lamarre, President of the Alumni Association, announced that it was necessary that Bishop Shiel leave. His Lordship expressed his regret that another appointment required him to return to Chicago. Once more he paid a brief tribute to Father O'Mahoney, summing up all that could be said of him in these words: "To know him is to love him."

When everyone had eaten, Father Lamarre introduced the toastmaster of the day, the Rev. John J. Flanagan, Pastor of the Cathedral at Rockford. From then on until the end of the meal, whenever Father

SPRING DANCING
PARTY IS GREAT
SOCIAL SUCCESSJuniors and Sophomores Prove Wonderful Hosts

The Junior-Sophomore dancing party was one of the most successful of social affairs held here in recent years. The crowd was not large. In fact, the number of couples only slightly exceeded half the number who attended the Homecoming dance. The absence of an oversize crowd made the evening a bit more enjoyable since the dance floor was only pleasantly filled with dancing couples. A more choice, more convivial gathering of young people has never before been enjoyed at the St. Viator College parties.

Delightful Music

The dancers were practically unanimous in praising the very splendid work of the orchestra engaged for the occasion. Obviously, "Lou" Caskey's Broadcasting and Recording Band made quite a hit with his audience. The very accommodating attitude of the orchestra leader, his alert compliance with requests for late and popular numbers and the noticeable efforts of each member of the orchestra to please the guests of the two entertaining classes, won the admiration and friendship of all. The advent of a large supply of confetti, and colored streamers when the evening was about half done "pepped up" the dance and kept alive the gaiety that might otherwise have lagged. The condition of the floor, the ef-

BERGIN DEBATERS
BEAT HOLY CROSS
IN FINAL CONTESTVery Successful Season Closed
With a Victory

The Bergin Debating Society closed its forensic season, April 9, when it defeated Holy Cross of Worcester, Mass., in an unusually interesting debate. Debating this year was probably the most successful in the history of the college. Our traveling teams came through the season with a decided margin of victories, quite an achievement since judges are so prone to favor the home team. The negative of the Jury trial, however, gained a very enviable record. Of its seven contests with some of the strongest schools in the country, it failed to win a decision over Loyola alone. St. Thomas College, College of St. Paul, Minn., national debating champions for last year, succumbed to the attack of the Viatorians and our old-time rivals St. Xavier likewise went down to defeat in an unusually close contest.

Brilliant Orators.

The debate with Holy Cross was admirably well suited to end up a successful season. The visitors were the most accomplished orators that appeared this year, with the exception of the team from St. Thomas College. They were perfectly at home on the platform and knew how to be entertaining as well as effective. They made one almost forget that he was listening to an inter-collegiate debate. So perfect was the delivery and so comprehensive and attractive the subject matter, that one might easily have imagined himself at a hectic gathering of the New York Bar Association. We were meeting experienced and competent lawyers rather than student aspirants in forensic oratory. There will be little difficulty in securing crowded attendance at debates when collegiate debating approaches the standard of ability set by our friends from Holy Cross.

Both Sides Effective.

The arguments for both sides were effectively presented. Our position seemed to be a little more difficult to dislodge, but throughout the debate we were kept on the defensive to demonstrate just how our improved jury system could meet the necessary reforms suggested by our opponents. The visitors restricted their arguments to a few major points and spent much of their time in presenting them clearly and forcibly to the audience. The many colorful illustrations and analogies brought up by them to substantiate their arguments made the jury trial seem much more enticing than the previous discussions of this technical question would have made one think possible. If the visitors did not excel in straight-forward rebuttal work and strength of position, they at least sent everyone home with an extremely vivid conception of the deficiencies in our present system. From what they told about that "sacred institution" it was a natural conclusion to draw that time had come for a decided change. The magnetic Mr. Carroll's continued harping on the expense, inefficiency, and incompetency of the jury virtually persuaded one to believe in its truth no matter what evidence might

LAKE FOREST UNIV.
SUCCUMBS BEFORE
IRISH ONSLAUGHTViator Has Great Day at The Plate

The highly touted Lake Forest college baseball aggregation proved to be easy prey for the Irish batsmen in a one sided game which ended with Viator leading 16 to 3. The game was delayed and did not get under way until an hour later than the scheduled time due to the condition of the playing field. Consequently only seven innings could be played. But this was sufficient for Viator to show its superiority over the visitors. John Herbert hung up his second victory of the season by allowing only four hits and three runs. John had the visitors well in hand throughout the pastime and they garnered their runs in the closing innings when he eased up a bit.

Viator started scoring in the third inning when two walks, a double and two singles pushed across two runners for them. In the fourth they started in right where they left off the inning before, an error combined with a base on balls and three hits netted the Irish three more runs. The seventh stanza was a repetition of the preceding innings with the Irish scoring seven runs. Three hits, (Continued on fourth page)

Commerce Students
On Inspection Tour

On Saturday afternoon, April the 20th the Office Management Class of the Commerce Department made an inspection trip through the offices of the Kroehler Furniture Company's plant at Bradley, Illinois. This trip was planned by Prof. Roy C. Bates and the purpose of it was to enable the students to gain a working knowledge of the various office appliances in use at the Kroehler Office.

The inspection trip through the offices was directed by Mr. Boudreau, the office manager. Mr. Boudreau fully displayed one of the important qualities of an office manager which is to be able to operate all of the appliances used in his office. The use of the calculator, ediphone, comptometer and other devices are no longer merely theoretical to the members of this class. Mr. Boudreau operated each device and explained its function in their organization to the group of assembled students.

Probably the most interesting appliance in the Kroehler office was the series of three machines used to tabulate the cost of sales. These three machines, the first of which was used to punch the cards, the second to sort them, and the third to tabulate them performed their tasks in such a speedy efficient manner that one could hardly conceive their operations possible. This is the only device of its kind in Kankakee and it is certainly a great asset to any office where a large amount of tabulating must be done.

The students and faculty of the Commerce Department of St. Viator College take this opportunity to thank the Kroehler Furniture Company and especially Mr. Boudreau for the courtesy shown the students during their visit at the factory office.

'One Hundred Freshmen in September'

One of the most over-worked of the shibboleths used in the now raging battle of the superlatives is the catch phrase known as the superlative of paradox. An example: The Biggest Little City In The World. Another: The Biggest Little College In The State. St. Viator College however, has no longer the desire, if ever she did have it, to be styled The Biggest Little College In Illinois. That she is big in the sense that she accomplishes much need not be proven: her athletic records, her prestige in debating, her scholastic results are sufficiently eloquent to be convincing. That she is big and great and powerful in the good she does in the hearts of her young charges is not questioned. What is of greatest moment is that, according to the second member of the paradox, she is far, far too small. Too long now has she been great and small: she now aspires for greatness, or at least abundance, of numbers as well as of achievements. Yet her motive is most honorable: she wants an increased enrollment chiefly as a means to better herself. More students mean more revenue; and although the profit cleared from each student may be but a pittance, yet five hundred pittances are better than fifty. Increased enrollment means the opening of new courses, the employment of more good professors, the installation of better laboratories, the building up of a greater library. But why hunt down the obvious? The question is not: Will increased enrollment benefit our school?, but rather: How increase the enrollment?

The latest campaign for more students bears the slogan ONE HUNDRED FRESHMEN IN SEPTEMBER. Ideal, indeed! But how is it to be done? Simple. Every friend of the College, especially every alumnus, is to demonstrate his friendship in a practical manner. Everyone who knows one or more boys who are to graduate from high school this June is to send in the name and address of the boys to the College so that they may be visited by the canvassers this summer. And in addition, the alumnus or friend is to try to persuade this boy to enter St. Viator College next September. A few good words of praise and commendation for a school coming from a friend who has been there himself are very effective in influencing prospective students to enter the College. All that is necessary is that everyone who is interested in the development of St. Viator College and who thinks well of the old school should simply manifest his interest and give expression to his thought.

The alumni have received letters from the president of the College announcing the inauguration of the campaign for ONE HUNDRED FRESHMEN IN SEPTEMBER. Alumni, friends, and some students, no doubt, will read this editorial and will hear more of the campaign; it will also be announced in other ways. But a special appeal is made here to spread the word around more and more, to talk up the campaign amongst the friends of the College, and what is most important, to donate to St. Viator College the few minutes necessary to send in the name and address of prospective students and tell them just why they should be numbered among the ONE HUNDRED FRESHMEN IN SEPTEMBER.

Flanagan had the floor, and at frequent intervals during the other speeches also, to adapt a figure from a Pre-Volsteadian poet, wit flowed like wine. One would almost think Shakespeare had returned from the battlements of eternity to honor the occasion, so frequent were the references to the great poet. Fr. Flanagan's introductions, brilliant products of a trenchant wit and a striking originality gave a happy balance to the program of eulogistic toasts that were sincere and interesting and sparkling with beautiful English, yet, as all eulogies must be, a trifle ponderous and severe. Father Bergin responded to the toast "My Friend" pointing out first of all that Fr. O'Mahoney was indeed his friend, but not in any exclusive sense. "He is my friend, your friend, their friend, everyone's friend." His speech was most eloquent and touching—and no wonder Fr. O'Mahoney declared later that depths in his soul were touched this day never sounded before.

Rev. T. E. Shea, Chancellor of the Peoria Diocese, responded next to the "Greetings from the Peoria Diocese." He began with a bit of clever repartee, directed at the jocund toastmaster. In his toast he outlined Fr. O'Mahoney's life work, showing that the good of St. Viator College had always been his fetish.

Msgr. F. F. O'Connor, Chancellor of the Rockford Diocese responding to the toast "Greetings from the Rockford Diocese," among other things indulged in a little St. Patrick's Day oratory on the glories of the Irish race, showing that Fr. O'Mahoney had imbibed and made practical the high and noble ideals of that high and noble people.

The regrets were universal that the Rev. P. C. Conway was unable to be present. Fr. Flanagan and he would have electrified the gathering with the encounter of their facile wits. As it was Father Flanagan had to be satisfied with a few stories at the expense of Fr. Conway.

In place of Fr. Conway's toast "Greetings from the Chicago Diocese," J. A. Nolan of the Senior class of 1929, briefly spoke, extending the greetings of the student body to the beloved Jubilarian and presenting him with a token of remembrance for the day, a handsome gold watch. Lowell A. Lawson, Treasurer of the Alumni Association, responded next to "A Lay Estimate." He told in what esteem Fr. O'Mahoney is held by the laity and reiterated the sentiments of the bishop that to know him is to love him. He said that Fr. O'Mahoney had commanded that no purse should be collected in honor of the occasion, but that in spite of no solicitations having been made, voluntary offerings in excess of $5,000 had already been made and more were to follow. He also announced that in honor of the Jubilee also, several generous contributions had been made to the Extension Club.

The present President of St. Viator College, the Very Rev. J. W. R. Maguire, c. s. v., spoke next on "His Life's Work." He limited his remarks principally to one fundamental and all-important idea: that Father O'Mahoney had given up his beloved work of the class room, for which he was gloriously fitted by nature, in order to go forth and conquer those financial obstacles that well-nigh threaten to ruin the small college. He made it evident that in this sacrifice is found Father O'Mahoney's chief glory, and, not fearing to mince words, he criticized severely the

NEW MONSIGNORI
IS PERFORMED

Former Viator Students Become Monsignors

The investiture as a domestic prelate of the Rt. Rev. Frederick Francis Connor, J. C. L., chancellor of the diocese of Rockford and pastor of St. Peter's Church, took place on May 5th, at 11 o'clock, in St. Peter's church. The Rt. Rev. Edward F. Hoban, D. D., bishop of Rockford, officiated. The Solemn High Mass was celebrated by the Rev. A. Marchesano, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, assisted by the Rev. V. Kulikuskas, pastor of SS. Peter and Paul church, as deacon, and the Rev. L. A. Jasinski, pastor of St. Stanislaus church, as sub-deacon. The Rev. Francis J. Conron of Aurora was master of ceremonies. The sermon was delivered by the Very Rev. J. W. R. Maguire, c. s. v. Assistants to Bishop Hoban were the Rt. Rev. J. P. McGuire, pastor of Holy Angels' church, Aurora; the Very Rev. James J. Horsbaugh of Chicago; and Rt. Rev. Andrew J. Burns, V. G., S. T. L., of Sterling, Ill. Members of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus in full regalia acted as an escort to Bishop Hoban.

A banquet followed the ceremonies in St. Peter's parish hall at which about two hundred guests gathered. Our familiar friend, the Rev. J. J. Flanagan, Ph. D., rector of St. James pro-Cathedral, Rockford, was the toastmaster. Speakers included the Rev. Jos. Lonergan, pastor of St. Mary's church, the Rev. F. J. Keenan, pastor of St. Patrick's church, and the Rev. D. R. Kelly, pastor of St. James' church, Lee, Ill. The last named was a classmate of the new monsignor at St. Viator's College.

Investiture of Msgr. Connor

More than eighty priests and hundreds of laymen participated in the investiture of the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John P. McGuire, pastor of St. Mary's church, Aurora, Sunday, April 28th. The Rt. Rev. E. F. Hoban, D. D., bishop of Rockford, officiated at the ceremonies held at St. Mary's church, Aurora. Monsignor McGuire has been pastor at St. Mary's parish for the last sixteen years and has gained a position of high regard not only among his parishioners but throughout the diocese.

He is a native of Rockford diocese, having been born in St. Mary's parish, Sterling. He studied classics at Northern Illinois College and then at St. Viator's, making his theological studies later at St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore, Md. He was ordained June 24, 1899 by Archbishop Feehan. Msgr. McGuire served as assistant at St. Mary's, Sterling, and Immaculate Conception church, Chicago, and later was pastor of Holy Cross, Batavia, before being made pastor of St. Mary's Aurora.

situation of society that made this sacrifice necessary.

The last speech of the program, Father O'Mahoney's "Response" was soul-stirring. To summarize it briefly, it was a beautiful paean to the Giver of all things good for twenty-five years of happiness in the service of His Holy Altar; it was a thanksgiving to the Community he has loved and served so well for offering him the means of ascending the altar of his God; it was a grand "merci" to all the tributes that loving and happy friends had made that day in honor of his quarter of a century as a priest.

Alumni News

The Viatorian extends to the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Shiel, D. D., Bishop of Pege, and Auxiliary Bishop of Chicago, its felicitations on the occasion of the First Anniversary of his consecration as a successor of the Apostles.

Monday, April 22, Bishop Shiel consecrated three new altars in the new St. Viator's Church, Chicago.

It happened last December 28th, yet no doubt many of his old friends haven't heard of it yet: Arthur Long of the Academy class of 1923 is married to Miss Doris Kelly of Decatur, Illinois. The couple reside at Little Rock, Arkansas, where Art is Coach at Little Rock College.

On April 20, 1929, Miss Irene Tierney was united in marriage to Robert Moore. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. V. Cardinal, vice-president of St. Viator College, at Our Lady Help of Christians Church, Chicago. The bridegroom attended St. Viator's from 1924-1926.

A very large number of the alumni were at the College April 24th for Father O'Mahoney's Jubilee. Although many of those present were lay Alumni, it seemed that there were more members of the clerical Alumni here that day than have been seen around here at one time for years.

iciency of the cloak-room managers, and especially the colorful decorations gave ample evidence of the amount of time and labor expended by the Juniors and Sophomores in their efforts to insure the success of the affair.

Beautiful Decorations

Under the very capable direction of Mr. Irvin Mathews of Kankakee, Ill., prominent member of the Junior class, the Decoration Committee dressed the gymnasium in a pleasing combination of spring colors. The original green and white hues were changed to a deep purple and pink by the suffused glow that came from pink paper covered lamps overhead and from the pink Japanese lanterns that were strung beneath the overhanging canopy of paper streamers. Purple and gold chandeliers of cut paper decorated the lights below the circular running track. Opposite the palm and fern covered orchestra stand the large Viator banner hung from the track and reminded the happy crowd that they were attending a "St. Viator Dance."

ST. VIATOR CHURCH IS DEDICATED WITH AUGUST CEREMONY

Father Ryan Able and Zealous
Pastor There

St. Viator Church, Addison and Kedvale Streets, Chicago, was dedicated with much pomp and ceremony Sunday morning, May 5, by His Eminence George Cardinal Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago. The dedication began at eleven A. M., and was followed by a Solemn Pontifical Mass. The Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Shiel, D. D., was the Celebrant of the Mass, assisted by the Very Rev. Walter J. Surprenant, c. s. v., as Arch-priest, the Rev. William F. Keefe as Deacon and the Rev. Louis F. DeCelle as Sub-Deacon. Deacons of Honor to His Eminence were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. J. Fitzsimmons, V. G. E.; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. F. A. Purcell, D. D.; and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. D. L. McDonald, D. D. The sermon was preached by the Rev. William J. Bergin, c. s. v., of the University of Illinois. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed the Mass and the ceremonies were concluded by an address by His Eminence the Cardinal. The musical program was unusually fine. The massive new organ, harps, a full orchestra, and a mixed choir of fifty voices were heard performing a new "Messe Solennelle" by Theodore DuBois, the Plain Chant Proper of the Mass, a quiet Offertory number and Saint-Saens gorgeous Recessional, Marche Heroique. The Organist, the Rev. Edgar Bourget, was for a time Director of Music at St. Viator College, and one of the soloists, Mr. John Monahan, is an alumnus of the College. Following the dedication a dinner was served to the clergy in the parish house.

The plant, of which this Church is the principal unit, will, when complete, form one of the most beautiful and serviceable parish groups in the arch-diocese. The church, rectory and convent are of Tudor Gothic, with numerous touches of modern American architecture, and the school will be re-faced to conform with the other buildings eventually. The plans call for very elaborate and scenic landscaping about the buildings. When completed, the plant will represent an outlay of $700,000.

The Church was designed by Mr. Charles L. Wallace of Joliet, and although it resembles most of Mr. Wallace's other large churches, it has certain attractive points all its own. The entrance is particularly graceful and ornate. Massiveness is the characteristic of the entire front of the church, but this is happily relieved by an exquisite Celtic cross towering above all.

The altar is of white Carrara marble; any description of it would demand superlatives exceeding the credible: set some feet above the body of the church, and bathed in soft light from the jeweled windows, it is a most gorgeous throne for the King of Kings. The side altars are of marble also; even the sanctuary floor is made of marble and terrazzo. Paneling, confessionals and pews are of walnut; the Communion rail bears wood-carved likenesses of His Eminence the Cardinal-Archbishop, and His Lordship the Auxiliary. The coats of arms of the two prelates are worked into the ceiling decorations in the Sanctuary and are also found several times throughout the Church proper. Over 180 figures, most of them different, have been painted on the beautiful ceiling of the church. All the stained glass windows are of the kind commonly described as defying description: the largest and most beautiful is the one in the front of the church, above the organ, representing that scene in the Gospel when our Lord says, 'Sinite parvulos venire ad me' (Suffer the little children to come unto me), which, as is known, is the motto of the Institute of the Clerics of St. Viator. Everything about the interior is symbolic of something or other in the Gospel or liturgy of the Church. And even on the outside it is said a devotional symbolism is apparent everywhere. The organ is a Kilgen, with fifty stops, twenty combinations, thousands of electro-magnets, and miles of wires. Prominent organists of Chicago have declared it to be excellent. Strangely, but most sensibly, the organ does not, as is the custom, hide from view from the inside the gorgeous stained glass window in the back of the church.

In general, the parish house resembles the church. It is composed of Bedford stone, and is three stories high. It contains the usual suites found in American parish houses, and has one of the distinctive features of a religious house, a Community Room. It is connected both with the Church and the church basement by a cloisura, which is what architects are now calling an enclosed cloister. The convent, not yet completed, is to the right of the church, and like the rectory communicates with it by means of one of the aforesaid cloisurae. The convent can accommodate most comfortably and yet religiously twenty Sisters of St. Joseph who are in charge of the school.

The Parish of St. Viator was established in 1888 by Very Rev. Cyril Fournier, c. s. v., the first Provincial Superior of the clerics of St. Viator in the United States. At first it was but a temporary chapel adjacent to the novice house on Crawford Avenue in which the Catholic people of this large section attended Holy Mass.

A year after the arrival of Father Fournier, Mr. John P. Sweeney donated an acre of ground toward the southeast corner of Crawford and Belmont avenues. On this ground a school was erected in 1890. From 1888 to 1900 Father Fournier was assisted by Rev. M. T. Dugas, c. s. v. In 1900 the Rev. Andrew Corcoran succeeded as pastor. He was succeeded by the Rev. A. Tardif, c. s. v. During this administration a substantial school building was erected in 1902. Upon the death of Father Corcoran in 1904, the Rev. T. J. McCormick, c. s. v., with Rev. M. Lennartz, c. s. v., as his assistant became pastor of the parish. During the years that followed he saw the necessity of moving the site of St. Viator's Church to Addison and Kedvale avenue since the incoming population settled largely in this northern section. Here in 1910 a combination school and church building was dedicated.

The Rev. James F. Ryan succeeded as pastor in 1912. The departure of Father McCormick, rightly regarded as the second founder of the parish was very much regretted. Father Ryan, who had been assistant to Father McCormick for two years was well prepared to succeed him. He it is that provided the sisters with a home of their own in the parish, and he it is also that constructed the building that has been used up until the present as a parish residence.

Father Ryan was replaced as pastor by Father J. P. O'Mahoney, c. s. v., from August 1918 until September 1919, but with the exception of that one year Father Ryan has been pastor continuously since 1912. Father Ryan is a product of St. Viator College, and taught here for some years before taking up parish work. He was Director of Studies for a while, and it was to fill the Presidential Chair here that he was taken from Chicago in 1918. Father Ryan has had unusual success in his parish work, and has been even honored by His Holiness Pope Pius XI. Were he not a religious there is scarcely a doubt but that he would have been made a private chamberlain with the title of Monsignor several years ago in recognition of his excellent work for the Propagation of the Faith. As it was, he was presented with a magnificent chalice by His Holiness, that had been used but once, and that by the Pontiff himself. His Eminence, Cardinal Mundelein, has also recognized his unusual abilities, and has from time to time commissioned him to do special work in the interests of the Church; he has also made him Diocesan Director of the Priests' Eucharistic League.

The following Viatorian priests have at one time or other served as assistants to Father Ryan at St. Viator's: Fathers Goulette, Patrick Brown, Kirley, Moisan, Sheridan, Brady, St. Amant, Vien, Stepheson and J. P. Lynch. At the present time he is assisted by Rev. Fathers John J. Farrell, Angelo A. Rinella, and Gregory A. Galvin. Brother Edward McEachen, c. s. v., is sacristan. An attractive souvenir booklet of the Dedication Ceremonies was prepared under the direction of Father Galvin.

The Junior-Sophomore dance also attracted guests from among the Alumni, all lay of course, and mostly young.

On May 1, a card party was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Kankakee for the benefit of St. Bernard Hall at St. Viator College. Mrs. William Barrett was chairman of the committee and was assisted by Mrs. H. C. Ruel and Miss M. Mallaney. The party was very successful and Father Munsch, who is in charge of St. Bernard Hall, wishes to thank these ladies, likewise the merchants of Kankakee and Bourbonnais who donated the prizes, and all those who helped to make the party such a marked success. The proceeds will be used in re-decorating the community room of St. Bernard Hall.

Throughout the constructive speeches as well as the finals, each speaker met the arguments of the preceding speaker in a very effective manner. Mr. Mulvaney and Mr. Murphy were better in this regard than they had been during the entire season. Mr. Stafford gave us his usual perfect analysis and refutation of the opponents position.

Win on Rebuttals.

Mr. Virgil L. Baker in rendering his decision, gave us the decision on rebuttal work and delivery. The analysis of the question and the evidence brought up in support of the positions, he concluded to be practically equal. We look forward with the keenest satisfaction toward seeing so splendid a team as Holy Cross presented, in the years to come.

"Always Glad to See You"

The Campus Punster

Devoted to that sadly neglected form of intellectual comedy which sees a hidden connection in apparently disparate ideas.

The column opens this time with a little spring prose composition entitled: "Of course they're golf-hose, Charlie. There's a hole in one."

It was a perfect midsummer's night, ripe for romance and intrigue, the kind youth dreams about and poets describe with lyric ecstasy. The empyrean was ablaze, a cool zephyr rustled in the trees, and fair Phoebe, slipping the silver train of clouds from off her shoulder, journeyed on through the night, casting a furtive glance down upon a still and silent world. Young as when first she looked upon the lovers in Paradise, that fair immortal now surveyed a scene of equal loveliness—It was an old Venetian villa with vineclad walls, and a low trellised balcony, over the side of which there hung lightly poised a fair coquettish figure, provocative and bewitching. Below a lithe Pierrot, guitar slung under the arm, gazed up in awe and adoration. For a time they remained there motionless oblivious to the world about them. Then, as if starting from a trance, the young man seized his guitar impetuously and in an outburst of fervent emotion exclaimed: "Hurry down now, Maude, or I'll thrump this darn thing."

The Aphorist says: Marry a school teacher, my son. She knows how to make the little things count.

And Cruickshank, the historian tells us: The Bunker Hill was a direct outcome of the Boston tee party.

"The wurst is yet to come," cried the hungry freshman as he spied the dogs three tables away.

More Gaul-stone Trouble

"Omnia Gallia divisa est in tres partes." And you got more than your share, Mr. Punster. It takes an awful lot of crust to dish us out that stale joke on the blackberry pie. Sincerely,
The Epigrammist.

This lad could sell ice in Alaska or galoshes to the Hottentots. Kathie! my love. You're the light of my life, the joy of my heart, and I throw my fortune at your feet.
It isn't such a big fortune though, John.

No love! but it will look awfully big next to your little feet.

An open letter to the "Punster"

Dear Punster: In criticism of this fearful excrement of decadent humor, so flamboyantly flaunted in our faces and disgracing our college paper, I would kindly refer you and the reader to page 171 of Maher's "Psychology." "The most degraded form of wit," he says, "is exhibited in puns, which consists in a mere accidental similarity in oral sound. The felicitous apprehension of a hidden connexion between incongruous ideas, which constitutes the essence of a true wit, IS INVARIABLY LACKING." As ever,
Sen. Borah A. Lott.

A somewhat veiled reply.

Dear Senator: "The Punster" would gladly defend itself, and answer your charge, but as your friend Sen. Curtis to the Iowa farmer said.....!

Still more abuse.

Mr. Punster: Your "lyric poetry" is abominable. As an instance of your gross violation of veracity I might take the verse, "And thou Terpsichore! is thy thundering heard at Rainbow gardens still?" The fact of the matter is, that Terpsichore has no more influence over the thundering herd at Rainbo Gardens than she had over that ungainly crowd that made their exodus to the Rosary College dance.

It is a good suit all right Oscar, I'll admit that. But what I am maintaining is that you got worsted.

And to give this issue a personal touch, a dash of spontaneity, and an air of finality:—

Say Father! How did you get down to Miami? Fr. F. E. M.—Flu.

The urge for Spring prose comes on again. So we must finish the column with another little composition entitled:

Man alive Man-o-War.

The three-year-olds rounded the curve at a maddening pace and swung into the home-stretch. With a deafening shout the crowd roared. The jockeys, delirious with excitement, spurred their charges on to greater effort. Five sleek black bodies, increasing slowly in momentum, virtually hurled themselves at the thin white tape. The judges, some wild with exultation, others, tense with repressed emotion, now assumed a steady posture and a glassy stare. Dead silence prevailed. The spectators lost all power of motion. You could have distinctly heard a gumdrop. Mr. Rockerfeller, flashing his new dimes in the faces of the crowd, would have passed unnoticed. In a way it surpassed in intensity the murder scene of "Macbeth," just prior to the knocking at the gate. All animation had ceased. Then finally, as the streaks of ebony flashed past the tape, a staccato voice rang out loud and clear: "Man alive judge! look at that horse's neck!"

Succumbs Before Irish Onslaught

a walk, and three errors together with some great base running by the Irish gave them seven tallies. Laenhardt cleared the sacks in this inning with a terrific smash to right field for a home run. In the eighth four more runs were scored on three hits and an error. Ross hit to center field for a circuit clout in this inning. Lake Forest scored one run in the sixth on a double and an error, and two in the seventh on a hit, a base on balls and an error.

Lake Forest used three hurlers in an attempt to silence the bats of the Irish but all three were accorded the same reception by the Irish. Captain Laenhardt had a perfect day at the plate, getting a home run and three singles in four trips to the plate. Jack Ross, the slugging shortstop, cracked out a home run and a double in four times at bat while Evard had three singles to his credit in five times at bat. Viator also played great defensive ball, only one error being charged against them in the course of the afternoon's pastime.

Fr. O'Mahoney's Response

Mr. Toastmaster: Beloved Bishop: Right Reverend Monsignori: Reverend Fathers and Kind Friends:—

This day, there have been sounded in my heart, depths that were never sounded before. In the spiritual ecstasy of ordination, my soul fainted away; but in the consciousness that God has allowed me to serve him as a priest for a quarter of a century there springs within me thoughts and affections too heavenly to be imprisoned in the language of words. If you wish adequate expression of my feelings on this the glorious day of my sacredotal jubilee you must seek a rendezvous with the angelic choir. What shall I render to God for all that he has given to me throughout those priestly years? Nothing of mine own, have I to give, but the chalice of salvation I shall lift up to glorify and magnify the name of the Lord forever. Within the sanctuary these many years, I have tasted and learned that the Lord is sweet. The light of faith has blended with the dawn of reason, so that even at the very morning of life, I have looked out upon the world, and every fibre of my being has been aquiver with the conviction that the earth is the Lord's and "the fullness thereof, the heavens and all that dwell therein". Through the eyes of God, I have looked out upon the things which God has made, and with God I have seen that they are good. Music and light, beauty and love, freedom and happiness, the joys of the mind, the pleasures of the senses, the delights of the appetites; out of all these creatures I have gotten the joy which God implanted therein to gladden the heart of man. I have used the mas the stepping stones to carry me through the void of this world to God Himself.

With such a beatitude of living, my outlook upon life has always been optimistic. In fact, I cherish the conviction that optimism and faith are interchangeable, that to cease to be an optimism is to cease to believe in that Providence which lifts us up from the profound depths of our own nothingness to the sublime heights enhanced with the beauty of God's own living. This revelation of life I have received from God through Christian parents to whom the supernatural was natural, and the treasures of heaven the only riches worth while. In their mind every Christian belonged to a priestly race, a royal priesthood and the highest royalty was the royalty of Jesus Christ. The ideals of the priesthood they implanted in my mind and when the difficulties of attainment were to me insurmountable they vanished before the divine devotion of a mother whose faith never wavered. To their cherished memory, on this day of spiritual triumph I pay the tribute of my priesthood.

Gratitude, akin to that which I have for God and my parents, upwells in my heart today for the Viatorian Order because it made possible the dreams of my youth. When I applied for admission thirty-five years ago, the saintly Father Fournier, the man who sowed in tears the seeds whose sheaves we today gather rejoicing, bade me enter on one condition—that I bring a trunk full of good will. Had other fees been exacted, the priesthood would have remained for me a pious dream. I can never repay the noble order that privileges me with membership and that has given me the opportunities to prepare myself for the greatest of all life works, the education of youth.

This lifework has enriched me beyond the power of figures to calculate. For more than a quarter of a century to have had a hand in the formation of such real men as Viator men is a distinction which engenders laudable pride. In every line of human endeavor, in all the walks of life, in the ranks of the clergy, even among the hierarchy our little college on the banks of the Kankakee has produced sons whose renown, as the legitimate fruit of their own worth, crowns their Alma Mater with a diadem of imperishable glory. That this is no mere gesture, no empty figure of speech, I have but to bow to the most gracious of gentlemen, the most priestly of priests, the most lovable of Bishops, and above all the most real of men, our beloved Bishop Bernard Shiel. In him we have reincarnated, from the Fourth Century and the city of Lyons, to the Twentieth Century and the city of Chicago, the devotion, the youthful enthusiasm, the self-denial, the humility of that lovable cleric of God, our charming patron Viator the teacher of youth and the companion of Bishops.

Any man who has a rational appreciation of life values, cannot but recognize as priceless the years spent in spiritual and intellectual association with such men. This may be losing one's life in the drudgery of the classroom but it is losing it only to find it glowing with divinity in the creative work of souls radiating the light of God's own intelligence. The classroom, the pulpit, the confessional and God's holy altar have ennobled my life and made me supremely happy. For this inestimable blessing, I thank God through the feeble efforts of a life of faltering service. There is a joy in God's service unknown to leisure, to worldly pleasure, to earthly attainments, a joy which enriches beyond all human measure. His slaves are free-men enjoying the freedom with which Christ has made men free.

Down the years I have walked with such men, side by side I have worked with them, I have drugged with them, argued, striven, plotted, spent tired days and sleepless nights; all for the single purpose to advance the cause of higher Catholic education, crystallized as our lifework in that college whose trials endear her to her sons, that college which today reaps the rich harvest for which the soil was prepared by that sturdy educational pioneer and his faithful band of Canadians exiles, the indomitable Father Roy, and for which the seed was sown by that man of vision who drew from the hilltops of poetic inspiration the heat and sunshine which ripened the waving fields of golden grain St. Viator's Patriarch, Father Marsile. With her tradition of unbroken loyalty and unstinted sacrifice to labor for Viator to keep her unconquered banner floating forever over a field of glory is to dedicate one's life to a cause most holy.

The sweet bonds of affection that bind me to the Brethren of Viator, woven by the warp and woof of community life, constitute no small share of my happiness today. To the faculty and the alumni I am deeply indebted for this wonderful celebration and I extend in a particular manner my thanks to that inspired leader, that indefatigable worker, that giant of social, economic and political reform, that prodigy of intellectual dynamies, that thomaturgis of bi-location who wears the mantle of Viator as to the manner born, the man who brings victory to lost causes, Father Maguire.

The family circle of the Viatorians I am sure will not be slighted if I select therefrom and lay at his feet a tribute of devotion, one who has been for thirty-five years the friend of my heart, the inspiration of my life, the exemplar of all that is manly and noble, whose magnanimity alone

VIATOR BREAKS EVEN IN FIRST TWO GAMES

Lose Opener by Score of 4 to 3

St. Viator College opened its 1929 baseball campaign with a heart-breaking loss at the hands of James Millikin University of Decatur. With the game apparently in the bag in the ninth inning for the Irish, Millikin came from behind to stage a story book ending by scoring two runs to win the game 4 to 3. The score was close all the way and from the first stanza it was a pitcher's battle between Bill Todd of the Irish and Alfrey of Millikin. Todd pitched great ball and had the better of the argument until the fateful ninth. The Chicago redhead struck out nine men and allowed only seven hits. O'Malley and Laenhardt led the batting attack for the Irish. Red garnered two hits out of four trips to the plate, one of them being a long triple. Laenhardt hit a double for the other extra base hit of the Irish. Resh and Habecost led Millikin in hitting, both rapping out two hits. One of Resh's hits was his circuit clout in the ninth which broke up the ball game.

Neither team scored until the fourth when Viator pushed across one run. Ross led off in the fourth and was out at first on a slow roller to the pitcher. Evard singled to left and scored on O'Malley's triple to keep left field. Millikin scored two runs in the seventh by coupling two hits with three errors by the Irish. Millikin led by the slender margin of one run until the ninth when O'Malley singled and scored on Laenhardt's double. Laenhardt scored a few minutes later when Millikin committed two errors. Leading by one run Viator took the field to give Millikin their last bat. Kirk led off with a single and then like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky came Resh's home run into the center field bleachers scoring two runs to give Millikin victory.

The combination of Ross and Evard around second base functioned to a great advantage. In the first inning this combination executed a fast double play and performed creditably throughout the game.

Saint Viator Nine Loses to Luther College

Saint Viator College lost their first home game of the season to Luther College of Decorah, Iowa, by a score of 7 to 1. Hanahan pitched for the Irish and the timely hitting of the visitors coupled with his unsteadiness in the pinches proved to be his downfall. Luther, the visitor's star moundman, kept Viator's hits well scattered and struck out seven men. The visitors got to Hanahan for two runs in the first stanza, three in the seventh and two in the eighth. Viator scored its lone marker in the eighth.

E. Olson, Luther's leadoff man greeted Hanahan with a triple to right. Brendal rolled out, Hanahan to Laenhardt. M. Olson doubled to right scoring E. Olson. Luther hit to Romary and was thrown out at first. Olson went to third on the play and scored on Romary's error. In the seventh Stenehjem was safe on Laenhardt's error. Thompson sacrificed, and Stenehjem scored on Lande's single to right. E. Olson walked. Both men moved up a base on Brendal's fielder's choice. M. Olson singled, scoring both men. In the eighth Stenehjem and Thompson walked. E. Olson singled to right, scoring Stenehjem and moving Thompson to third. Thompson scored while Ross and Laenhardt were attempting to run Olson down between first and second.

Viator scored its lone tally in the eighth and threatened to put several more across the plate in the same inning. Long opened the inning with a terrific smash into center field that went for a triple. Hanahan rolled out to third. Ross drove a single into right, scoring Long. Evard singled to center, Ross stopping at second. Ross was thrown out at third when he took too long a lead. O'Malley then fled out to end the inning.

Evard and Long led Viator in hitting, the former with two singles and the latter with a triple to his credit. Ross, at short, and Evard played great ball in the field for the Irish. Ross made a spectacular catch back of second and doubled Luther off first in the fourth. M. Olson and E. Olson were the stars for Luther. M. Olson drove out two hits, one a double, while E. Olson cracked out a single and a triple.

McKENDREE BOWS TO IRISH BATSMEN

Late Start in Fifth Gives Viator Another Win

Saint Viator College baseball team won its second victory in as many days and its third conference victory by defeating McKendree in a fast game Saturday by a score of 4 to 3. From the start of the game it was a pitcher's battle between Todd of Viator and Cornwell of McKendree with Todd emerging victorious. The Chicago red-head pitched his usual steady game, striking out five men and allowing only four hits. Cornwell, the visitor's star pitcher retired ten men by the strikeout route, but he was touched for eight hits and four runs by the Irish.

McKendree went into the lead in the first inning when Hamilton singled, went to second on a sacrifice and scored when Ross let Gossett's drive get through him. In the second frame they counted again on singles by Cornwell and Hamilton. Their third run came in the next inning when Gossett singled and scored on two successive errors by Viator. Viator scored its first run in the fifth inning and added one in the sixth, seventh and eighth frames. Steve Long opened the fifth with a long double to left center and advanced to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a similar play. In the sixth Romary singled and went to second on Ahern's single. Both runners moved up a base when Navigato was hit by a pitched ball. Romary scored when Todd also was hit by the pitcher with the bases full. Laenhardt started off the seventh with a double and went to third on O'Malley's single. He scored a moment later on a fielder's choice. Long brought in the winning run in the eighth stanza. Steve was safe at first on a fielder's choice. Ross sacrificed Long to second. Long scored on Evard's double to center.

Bill Todd led the Viator attack with two hits out of three trips to the plate while Hamilton rapped out two singles to lead McKendree in hitting.

Wesleyan Swamped

Smarting under the defeat handed them the day before by Millikin, Saint Viator's baseball team won their first victory from Illinois Wesleyan by a score of 7 to 0. Coach McAllister picked "Honest John" Herbert for slab duty and John proceeded to justify his selection by allowing Wesleyan only two hits. His knuckle ball coupled with a brilliant change of pace kept the Wesleyan batters in a daze throughout the game.

Viator started scoring in the third inning when Ross walked and advanced to second by Evard's sacrifice. O'Malley and Laenhardt both walked and Ross and O'Malley scored on Ahern's single to left. Evard and Ross scored in the fifth on Wesleyan errors. The Irish tallied another in the eighth. Romary walked and Todd singled, but they were caught stealing. Long singled to center and scored on Herbert's double to left. Two more runs came across in the ninth when Romary drove a timely single to left scoring Laenhardt and Ahern. The closest Wesleyan came to scoring a run was in the sixth when an error combined with two walks filled the bases but the next two men popped out to put an end to the danger.

Romary, Ross and Herbert led the assault on Wesleyan. Ross and Herbert rapped out doubles while Romary had three singles to his credit out of four trips to the plate. Romary played a great game at third base. The erstwhile catcher accepter four hard chances at third with the ease of a veteran. Ahern played a great game behind the plate. The diminutive catcher handled the slants of Herbert in great style and picked off several hard fouls.

"A Divine Message"

As I sat all alone, one bright evening,
'Neath the beautiful star-studded sky,
I was wrapt in profound contemplation
O'er the myst'ry that greeted my eye.

What a wondrous Omnipotent Being
My Creator and Father must be,
To have made sparkling eyelets from nothing
To be guardians at night over me.

At the thought of His kind condescension
And His manifestation of Love,
Lo it came to me that He was watching
From the Portals of Heaven above.

Then my soul swell'd with grateful emotion
As it basked in this heavenly light;
And it pined for complete dissolution
With the Christ Who restored to it sight.

And I heard a voice whispering gently
(Whence it came, only God Himself knows)
But it spoke in the kindest accents,
Like the soft lisp'ng breeze, when it blows.

What it said fill'd my poor heart with ardor.
O that 't would speak the same words to you!
For it lifted my soul from its anguish,
And confirm'd it in Happiness True.

Yea, it told of the world all about me,
Of its emptiness, vanity, lust,
Then it urged me to scorn and reject it,
And assur'd me that to live, I must.

So I kist with affection the habit,
And my name in Christ's army enroll'd.
Now I burn with desire to tell thee
Of the One Friend, Who my heart consol'd.

—Joseph L. Drolet.

rivals his talents and learning, that tireless and efficient educator of Catholic youth, Father Bergin.

I can now face the fascinating stretch toward the golden years with a stout heart and a light step, with such friends as you by my side and a worthy cause. Many are the nights that would be desolate, and many are the days that would be dreary were it not for the kindly smile, the cheerful word, the helping hand of true friends, like you friends, friends of Viator. The gracious words of appreciation that have come to me in personal message and public speech make me feel that, even if I am neither as good nor as big, as my friends think I am, it is still a great consolation to have friends with such wonderful imaginations. As long as I am able to mortgage the good will of such friends as you for the college to which I am wedded, I shall be happy during all the years the Lord allots me to carry on for Viator and God. I hope to live long enough and to word hard enough to merit a medium of the encomiums lavished upon me today. I thank you one and all for this wonderful tribute. I assure you in all sincerity my heart is all the richer because you, my friends, are enshrined there forever.
